The situation has changed now and the Cape Town joint meeting passed a resolution "that calls for a universal response to AIDS". Several African churches, including those of Uganda and Tanzania have developed AIDS education and prevention programs.

Physical_Description: [6] p. ; 15.2 x 9 cm.

Material Type: Book

Notes: "[FM] 878".

Cover title.

"The substance of a sermon preached by the Rt. Rev. John M. Krumm at St. Paul's Church, Tustin, California, June 8, 1986 -- AIDS Mass IV.

Bishop Krumm is the retired Bishop of Southern Ohio". -- p. [1].

Contents: [Sermon] -- A prayer.

"Even as I welcome you to this Eucharist today, I need to ask the question: 'Why is this specially designated service of worship necessary?' ... In 1918 a ravaging epidemic of influenza decimated the whole population, including the United States. Yet so far as I know, there was never any 'Flu Mass' proposed or celebrated. There were probably special prayers in the churches and synagogues, just as there are such prayers in all our current liturgies. But this special liturgical effort is, I believe, unprecedented (p. [1-2])." "This is not just a public health problem. The problem is also one of an appalling lack of ordinary humanitarian concern where a despised and feared and hated minority seems to be at risk (p. [2])." "In far too many religious bodies, including a large part of the Episcopal Church, the response to the crisis in humanitarianism posed by the epidemic of AIDS has been isolated, cautious and tentative. Our theology of sexuality is in part to blame, and it needs to be re-examined in light of recent psychological studies" (p. [3]).

The author, a conservative Episcopal priest, has written these book, consisting of three essays "in response to two items published by diocesan commissions in the Episcopal Church on the matter of changing sexual morality" (p. 1) and out of his conviction that "None of this could have happened had the Church not lost its own sense of identity in the Biblical framework, the Biblical cosmos, and the Biblical God and Father of the cosmos. None of this could have happened had the Church had a healthy relationship to the scientific community. Had we been rooted in the truth in a healthy way, we would have spotted this poison, named it for what it was, and thrown it out of our midst" (p. 3). -- Intro.

This essay also summarize, compares, and contrasts the opinions found in the individual statements, allowing the user to place each one in the appropriate context. Each essay concludes with bibliographic citations to sources for further reading on the topic. Within the Roman Catholic Church section, statements are arranged chronologically by issuing date. The remaining sections are subarranged alphabetically by individual churches, religious bodies, or ecumenical organizations; the statements issued by each organization are presented chronologically within that organization. Each of the four religious family sections is preceded by a note which provides background information of the family and analysis of its perspective on the issue in question." -- Preface.

The Common Cup

Author: Wall, Dan

Record Type: Journal Article

Journal: Anglican World

Date: 1993 Lent - Easter

Issue: 70

Page: 11

Notes: A personal reflection by an Episcopal priest in which he discusses sharing the common cup with an AIDS patient. He confesses that even though he knew the risk of infection was greater for an AIDS patient to receive and that all scientific evidence indicates that AIDS itself cannot be transmitted through the chalice, he was afraid to receive after his parishioner until he truly heard and reflected on the words of administration "The Blood of Christ, the cup of Salvation".

The Gospel Imperative in the Midst of AIDS

<http://archives.anglican.ca/en/permalink/article5150>

Author: Iles, Robert H. (Robert Harold), 1938-

Reviewer: Reid, Jennifer (Jennifer Elizabeth), 1964-

Record Type: Book review

Journal: Anglican Journal

Date: 1990 December

Volume: 116

Issue: 10

Notes: "This book is a product of a symposium held at Church Divinity School of the Pacific in 1988. The contribution of the speakers and parts of the ensuing discussion by other participants were edited by Robert H. Iles, an Episcopal priest. The book is `not about the day-to-day care of and ministry to People with AIDS (PWA)', nor is it `a recipe book for educating congregations about the AIDS crisis'. Instead, as the title suggests, it provides theological grounding for the church."
